Barkouli named CEO of David Evans and Associates, Inc.

PORTLAND, Ore. – Nov. 1, 2010 - David Evans and Associates, Inc. (DEA) has named Al Barkouli as CEO and President. Barkouli succeeds Ken Wightman, who was CEO from 2004-2010, and Founder and Chairman of the Board Dave Evans.

“Al exemplifies the values that have made our firm successful,” said Evans. “His ability to build relationships in the community and within this firm is exceptional. He shoulders great responsibility with grace, knowledge, skill, and good humor. He is an outstanding professional and a true leader.”

Over the past 20 years, Barkouli held several leadership positions at DEA, including president, chief operating officer, executive vice president, and Portland office manager. He has been principal-in-charge for DEA’s work with the Bonneville Power Administration, the USDA Forest Service, Washington County, Ore., and TriMet light rail projects. Barkouli is a registered professional engineer in Oregon, Washington, and California, and a member of the Consulting Engineers Council of Oregon. He was named Rainmaker of the Year in 2006 by the Portland Daily Journal of Commerce.

Wightman will continue as CEO of David Evans Enterprises, the holding company for DEA and Aadland Evans Constructors, Inc.

Launched in Portland, Ore., as a two-person land development firm, DEA has grown to more than 17 offices in seven states and has become a national leader in transportation, geomatics and survey, and marine services. DEA also provides multidisciplinary services in support of energy, water, and land development projects in its regional markets. DEA is an employee-owned corporation and consistently ranks among ENR’s Top 100 Pure Design firms in the U.S. April 1, 2011 will mark DEA’s 35th Anniversary.
