New leadership appointments at David Evans and Associates, Inc.

PORTLAND, Ore. – Oct. 28, 2010 – On the eve of its 35th Anniversary, David Evans and Associates, Inc. (DEA) has made several new executive appointments.

Jay Lyman, P.E., has been appointed executive vice president. Lyman has been with DEA for more than 20 years. He leads the firm's Transportation business segment and has worked throughout the Western U.S. with state departments of transportation, counties, and cities in planning and engineering solutions to transportation needs. Lyman has held several leadership positions with DEA, including chief operating officer and vice president of professional services. DEA's Transportation business encompasses transit and rail, roads and highways, and bridges and structures services.

Cindi Polychronis, JD, has been named chief administrative officer (CAO) of DEA. Polychronis, a senior vice president of the firm, joined DEA in 2002 as director of human resources. As CAO, Polychronis will be responsible for the company's corporate communications, human resources, risk management departments, and the company's regional business managers.

Michelle Willis, a senior associate, has been named DEA's director of human resources. Willis joined DEA in 2007 as assistant director of human resources.

Launched in Portland, Ore., as a two-person land development firm, DEA has grown to more than 17 offices in seven states and has become a national leader in transportation, geomatics and survey, and marine services. DEA also provides multidisciplinary services in support of energy, water, and land development projects in its regional markets. DEA is an employee-owned corporation and consistently ranks among ENR's Top 100 Pure Design firms in the U.S. April 1, 2011 will mark DEA's 35th Anniversary.
